TEE STATE CONVENTIONS.

The Democratic State Convention, which meets at Saratoga to morrow, will be a very tame affair. What its results will be is already an "open secret." They depend on the leaders, not on the Convention. They have already been announced. Judge Maynard is to be the nominee for the Court of Appeals and the State candidates are all slated. Sen ator Hill has got through and gone back to Washington. Croker. Sheehan and McLaughlin have gone on to Saratoga. It does not much matter what the details will be. Pretty Table Ornament. Here is a pretty decoration for the dessert table seen in an uptown store. From an antique vase of low dimensions penetrated a group of red-gold teaves, mingled with field grasses, some hops creeping over the lip of the orna-ment, almost concealing the base. A few twigs of green leaves were stuck amid the brighter foliage, and from these twigs were suspended, by strong green thread, various kinds of seasonable fruit, such as rosy-cheeked apples, yellow pears, pink plums, grapes, &c. The fruit chosen, however, must needs possess a piece of stalk by which it can be attached to the twig, therefore wall fruit, such as peaches or nectarines, would be difficult to manage. The central leaves were raised above the others, and the rich ripe fruit nestled among the lower foliage. The novel device of as our old-fashioned method. A horn of plenty filled in a similar manner would be a rival ornament.

Millinery es. Dry Goods.

It is odd the way women folks buy their clothes. As a rule women of limited means get a dress first and a bonnet to match. Fine ladies go to the miliners, spend an hour or two selecting a becoming hat, put it on and then go seed oil and turpentine in equal parts, to the dry-goods store or the dressmakers and select a costume to go with This is a good scheme. It works well. Try it if in doubt. Milliners are A conundrum tea was given recently more intelligent and more conscientious tomer will send custom and come again
